

The initial set of screenshots depicts various Unity scripts and an early game concept demonstration, highlighting the functionality of dynamic Quick Time Event (QTE) spawning and UI management within a game project. This project was used as a tool to visualize the concept to my teammates. These scripts, though not all utilized in the final project iteration, were instrumental in prototyping interactive elements and exploring technical solutions. language model was used for partial creation of these solutions